Researcher

Introduction

A Researcher gathers information on pre-determined topics around mental health and illness.

We're looking for volunteers with knowledge of mental health, within a professional capacity; however, this is not entirely necessary.

Responsibilities

Research focuses on gathering and providing information to the Social Media team, relieving them of the research needed. This helps our Social Media team be more efficient and productive.

Researchers will often work together, sharing their findings and information with one another to produce content for the Social Media department.

Here are examples of Researcher duties:

- Determine areas of research to increase knowledge for a particular subject.
- Work to complete research prior to deadlines set by social media.
- Plan and perform surveys with the public on social media.
- Collect information for the creation of resources.
- Accurately record your work on our Research Complex.

What's Needed?

- Written and verbal communication skills.
- Computer literacy, specifically for Google Workspace.
- Knowledge of information and data collection methods.
- Ability to work within a team, but also demonstrate independent working.
